Dear Ms Leitch

THE USE OF E-CIGARETTES ON LICENSED PREMISES

At its meeting in Edinburgh on Saturday 1 March this year, the Council of the Institute discussed the sale and use of e-cigarettes in Scotland's public places.

After a lengthy and well-informed discussion, a number of proposals were agreed including one directing me to write to all local authorities requesting that their Licensing Boards consider imposing a ban on the use of e-cigarettes in licensed premises.

I would be grateful if you would forward this request to the Licensing Board of your Council for consideration.

Thank you in anticipation of your assistance.

Yours sincerely

The Royal Environmental Health Institute of Scotland (the Institute) has been in existence for over 139 years and has around 1,000 members the majority of whom are Environmental Health Officers working in that capacity for Scottish local authorities. The Institute is Incorporated by Royal Charter, is an independent self-financing organisation, is an independent awarding body for the profession and for a wide range of community training qualifications, and is a registered Scottish charity (No. SC009406). The Institute neither seeks nor receives grant aid and its charitable activities are funded significantly by the subscriptions received from its members.

The objects for which the Institute is established are for the benefit of the community to promote the advancement of Environmental Health by:

- stimulating interest in and disseminating knowledge concerning Environmental Health;
- promoting education and training in matters relating to Environmental Health; and
- maintaining, by examination or otherwise, high standards of professional practice and conduct on the part of Environmental Health Officers in Scotland.

Environmental Health Officers in Scotland are part of a graduate only profession and by virtue of their under-pinning academic education, professional practical training, professional qualifications and experience are well placed to apply a holistic public health approach to the education of the public and to the enforcement of a wide range of environmental and public health legislation.

The Institute is an independent awarding body for the profession and currently accredits the BSc (Hons) Environmental Health degree courses delivered at the University of Strathclyde and at the University of the West of Scotland as well as the MSc Environmental Health degree courses delivered at the University of Strathclyde and at the University of Derby (distance learning option). Environmental Health students, graduate and under-graduate, who wish to pursue a career as an Environmental Health Officer require to undertake a period of professional practical training and to successfully complete the Institute's Professional Examination which determines their professional competence to practice.

In terms of EU Directive 2005/36/EC on the recognition of Professional Qualifications within Member States and under the European Communities (Recognition of Professional Qualifications) Regulations 2007 the Royal Environmental Health Institute of Scotland is a UK Competent Authority for the Profession titles Environmental Health Officer and Chartered Environmental Health Officer.
